

Visitors to Coney Island ride the Coney Island Cyclone Roller coaster on August 13, 2022 in Brooklyn, NY. (Photo by Andrew Schwartz)

©Andrew Schwartz

Visitors to Coney Island ride the Coney Island Cyclone Rollercoaster on August 13, 2022 in Brooklyn NY. (Photo by Andrew Schwartz)

©Andrew Schwartz

Visitors to Coney Island ride the Coney Island Cyclone Rollercoaster on August 13, 2022 In Brooklyn NY.
(Photo by Andrew Schwartz)

©Andrew Schwartz

Visitors to Coney Island ride the Coney Island Cyclone
Rollercoaster on August 13, 2022 in Brooklyn NY.
(Photo by Andrew Schwartz)

©Andrew Schwartz

Visitors to Coney Island ride the Coney Island Cyclone Rollercoaster on August 13, 2022 in Brooklyn NY. (Photo by Andrew Schwartz)

©Andrew Schwartz

Javler Perez uses sand to sculpt the face of Jesus Christ in the sand while competing in the 30th annual Coney Island Sand Sculpting Competition in Brooklyn NY on August 13, 2022. This is the first competition to take place after the 2020 and 2021 were cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic. (Photo by Andrew Schwartz)

©Andrew Schwartz

William Petrosino works on his creating a sandcastle while competing in the 30th annual Coney Island Sand Sculpting Competition in Brooklyn, NY on August 13, 2022. This is the first competition to take place after the 2020 and 2021 were cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic. (Photo by Andrew Schwartz)

schwartz

A turtle. One of the many sand sculptures on display during the 30th annual Coney Island Sand Sculpting Competition in Brooklyn NY on August 13, 2022. This is the first competition to take place after the 2020 and 2021 were cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic. (Photo by Andrew Schwartz)

© Andrew Schwartz

A squid. One of the many sand sculptures on display during the 30th annual Coney Island Sand Sculpting Competition in Brooklyn NY on August 13, 2022. This is the first competition to take place after the 2020 and 2021 were cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic. (Photo by Andrew Schwartz)

Guillermo Jara and William Petrosino work on creating a sandcastle while competing in the 30th annual Coney Island Sand Sculpting Competition in Brooklyn NY on August 13, 2022. This is the first competition to take place after the 2020 and 2021 were cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic. (Photo by Andrew Schwartz)

(Far Left) Madelyn Dotti use sand to sculpt two mermaids laying in the sand while competing in the 30th annual Coney Island Sand Sculpting Competition in Brooklyn NY on August 13, 2022. This is the first competition to take place after the 2020 and 2021 were cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic. (Photo by Andrew Schwartz)

One of the many sand sculptures on display during the 30th annual Coney Island Sand Sculpting Competition in Brooklyn NY on August 13, 2022. This is the first competition to take place after the 2020 and 2021 were cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic. (Photo by Andrew Schwartz)